okkhāyika, (m)/(n). [derivation and meaning uncertain; v. infra], waned, gone down, sunken (cf. so; scdry deriv. from ava/apa + √kṣi [cf. sa. kṣāyika] ?) or, perhaps, beyond the reach of vision (scdry deriv. from ava/apa + √khyā [cf. sa. -khyāyaka] ?); seyyathā pi nāma gambhīre udapāne udakāṭarākā gambhīragatā -ā dissanti evam eva ssu me akkhikūpesu akkhītārākā gambhīragatā -ā dissanti, M I 80,20 (-ā ti heṭṭhā anupaviṭṭhā, Ps II 50,13) = 245,35; — Rem.: the meaning and derivation of ~ found only in this context remain uncertain. The ct. may be correct, but the equivalents for ~ in the parallel narratives in Mvu II 127,6 (krcchradarasānāye samprakāśenti) and Lal 254,17 (krcchreṇa samprakāśyante) may represent correct re-interpretations of an earlier tradition. If so, they would seem to support the alternative meaning suggested here.

okkhāsata, n. [the reading of BeCe for ukkhāsataṁ at S II 264,20-22 (v.l. in Ee ukkāsaṁ)], perhaps (a) a hundred pots (cf. prāk. ukkhā; sa. ukhā), or (b) a hundred torches (cf. ukkā/okkā; sa. ulkā); yo ... pubbaṇhasamayam -am dānam dadeyya, S II 264,20 ≠ 264,21-22 (-an [BeCe so; Ee ukkhā; v.ll. okkhā; okkā] ti mahāmukha-ukkhālīnam satam ... ukkā-sataṁ [Ee two words] ti pi pātho. tassa daḍḍadīpikasatan ti attho, Spk II 224,5,7); — Rem.: as the ct. and v.ll. show, there was no certainty about the correct reading and interpretation of ~. The okkh-/ukkh- alternation can be interpreted as showing ḍ- as a variation of u- before a doubled consonant. The problem is ukkā/okkā vs. ukkhā/okkhā, but the context does not make a conclusion possible. The supposed parallel ukkāḍānam at Ap 404,5 is probably an old error for ukkādhāra (cf. Ap 415,8).

The parallel verse to Ja at Utt XII 6 reads oma-celae (= nom.; explained as niḥṣṭācivara), and XII 7 reads omacelayā (= voc.). Both these readings are unmetrical. They support the explanation in Ja which refers to clothing, and possibly represent a gloss which has replaced the original reading. A prakr. origin would explain the indecision about the intervocalic consonant.

Op; opa niṭṭhubhane ... : opati, Sadd 404,11 (= √563); opa ... thapane: opeti opayati, Sadd 553,26 (= √1544); — Rem.: ~ is postulated by Aggavaṁsa on the basis of the canon and cts; it is extracted from the verbal forms -eti, -entū, -i, -itvā, -iya, -chi (qq.v. s.vv. opati and opeti). These forms are perhaps to be derived from ā + √vap through ā + up (zero grade of √vap) > op- (cf. sa. abs. opya = ā + upya), which came to assume the function of a verbal root. The two meanings: (i) to spit and (ii) to place, to put, which Aggavaṁsa ascribes to ~ are basically correct; cf. sa. āvapati and v. s.vv. opati, opeti; os- is sometimes wrongly substituted for op- because of the confusion of the letters p and s (v. Norman, EV I 49).

opaneyyika, mfn. [scdry deriv. from <sup>2</sup>upaneyya (q.v.) + suffix -ika], = opanayika (q.v.) which it replaces in Burmese Mss. and ed.s, presumably under the influence of Buddhaghosa's interpretation of opanayika (q.v. s.v.) which he, followed by Aggavaṃsa, interprets on the basis of Pān V 1 63 in a ger. sense (deriv. from the ger. of upa + √ni); opanayiko va opaneyyiko, Sadd 787,27 quoting Vism 217,3 foll. (this clause is probably an interpolated gloss on opanayika; it is only found in Burmese Mss. of Vism; cf. n. 2 ad Vism: 217,6); upaneyyo va ~o, Sadd 788,2 quoting Vism 217,12 (with reading opanayiko for ~).

opapakkhim, ind. (probably to be taken with karoti as a cpd. verb, with -im- < -i-; cf. sa. cpd. verbs with √kr), to revile, to blacken, to make insinuations about (ct. so); — Rem.: H. Smith (Sadd Index, p. 1292) suggests *aupapakṣ(y)i-karoti; the Burmese tradition evidently did not understand the word and substituted omakkhim (cf. makkha, makkhi(n) [< √mrkṣ]). The ct. seems to connect ~ with upa + √kṣip, which suits the meaning (cf. sa. upa + √kṣip), but does not explain the derivation; ~ is possibly an old error for opakkipim-karonti; — eke samanabrāhmaṇā ... te sakam yeva vādaṃ dipenti jōtenī, paravādaṃ pana khurāsenti vambhenti ~ (CeEe so; Be omakkhim with v.l. omakkhikam) karonti, A I 188,33 (~ [CeEe so; Be omakkhim] karonti ti upakhiṇ-akam [CeEe so; Be ukkh-] karonti, upakkipitvā [so read with v.l. for BeEe ukkipitvā] chaḍḍenti, Mp II 305,2) = 189,2.

PREFACE

The editors are pleased to present the first fascicle of CPD Vol. III, the publication of which has been made possible by grants from Bukkyo Dendo Kyokai, Tokyo; Reiyukai, Tokyo; Pali Text Society, London; Académie Des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres, Paris; Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique, Paris; Kungliga Vitterhets Historie och Antikvitets Akademien, Stockholm; Österreichische Akademie der Wissenschaften, Wien. As is well known, the former main sponsors of the CPD, the Carlsberg Foundation and the Danish Research Council for the Humanities, terminated their sponsorship in 1991 with the publication of the last part of the vowel section of the dictionary. Since it became clear that the CPD would have to be discontinued unless it proved possible to raise money enough for its continuation, members of the Danish Commission for A Critical Pāli Dictionary as well as interested scholars from Japan, England, France, Sweden, and Austria have succeeded in finding new sponsors for the CPD, who are interested in granting the means necessary to ensure its continuation. At this important juncture in the history of the dictionary the new sponsors have promised grants sufficient for financing the project for a period of ten years. The CPD project would thus seem to be financially secured for a sufficient period of time to make considerable progress with the publication of the dictionary. The present fascicle, introducing the comprehensive consonant section of the CPD, is to be followed each year by a new fascicle of about 65–80 pages, every five fascicles constituting one volume. It is thus hoped that CPD Vol. III and IV will be completed in ten years' time.

The editors plan to publish addenda and corrigenda for Vol. I and II, including a new Epilegomena, before CPD Vol. III is finalized. From CPD III.1 onward the users of the dictionary are kindly asked to refer to H. BECHERT, Abkürzungsverzeichnis zur buddhistischen Literatur in Indien und Südostasien, Göttingen 1990, for abbreviations that are not found in the abbreviation lists published in the Epilegomena (1948) and in CPD III.1.

Since the CPD project was revived in 1958 a considerable number of Pāli scholars have contributed articles to the CPD, thus making it possible to continue the publication of the dictionary. However, the success of the CPD has to a large extent been dependent upon its successive Editors-in-Chief, F. MØLLER-KRISTENSEN, L. ALSDORF, and K. R. NORMAN, as well as upon the continuous efforts of ELSE PAULY in keeping the CPD office in Copenhagen afloat. Without their work for the benefit of the project the editors would not have been in a position to carry on editing and publishing the CPD.

[kañcanadepiccha, problematic reading at Ja V 339,24* (pāda a) for which the editors offer the following two suggestions; 1. ~ is interpreted by the cl. as the voc. of a bhvr. meaning "whose two wings are like gold" (cf. the v.l. kañcanadvepiccha, q.v. infra s.v.); it is clear, however, that in order to ~~maintain the sense, pāda a must contain a finite verb~~ as shown by the sa. parallel at Jāt-m 134,8; it may be suggested reading kañcana-d-ev' icche for ~, d being a sandhi consonant (cf. GEIGER § 73.4) and ep' a hyper-form for ev' with elided -a before vowel (all of the recorded examples of d used as a sandhi consonant occur before eva; cf. GEIGER loc. cit.); the reading ~ may go back to a time when the sandhi form was no longer understood and the text consequently was analysed as a cpd., -d-e- being re-interpreted as = dve-; the suggested reading icche (corresponding to the pot. abhijotaye of pāda d) = pot. < *vikṣ (cf. pa. udicchare; v. CPD s.v. udikkhati) is paralleled semantically by lakṣyate at Jāt-m loc. cit; it may thus be suggested reading the verse: yan na kañcana-d-ev' icche (so probably read for kañcanadepiccha; v.ll. -dvepiccha, -deviñca) andhena tamasākataṃ (so read with v.l.; cf. sa. tamasākṛta) tādise sañcajaṃ paṇaṃ kam attham abhijotaye, Ja V 339,24* ("what object would you cause to shine [in the land of the dead] giving up your life for the sake of such a place where nothing whatsoever can be seen, being shrouded in total
